The Bradford Family Protocol is a groundbreaking holistic approach to managing Hereditary Edema (HEDS). This comprehensive guide provides everything you need to know about HEDS, from its causes and symptoms to the latest treatment options.

What is HEDS?

HEDS is a rare genetic disorder that affects the body's ability to regulate fluid balance. This can lead to a variety of symptoms, including:

- Swelling in the hands, feet, and legs
- Pain and stiffness in the joints
- Fatigue

- Nausea and vomiting
- Diarrhea
- Frequent urination
- Blurred vision
- Headaches

What Causes HEDS?

HEDS is caused by a mutation in the SLC12A3 gene. This gene is responsible for regulating the body's fluid balance. When this gene is mutated, it can lead to the development of HEDS.

How is HEDS Treated?

There is no cure for HEDS, but there are a number of treatments that can help to manage the symptoms. These treatments include:

- Medication
- Lifestyle changes
- Surgery

The Bradford Family Protocol is a holistic approach to managing HEDS that combines medication, lifestyle changes, and surgery. This approach is based on the latest research on HEDS and has been shown to be effective in reducing symptoms and improving quality of life.

What's Included in the Bradford Family Protocol?

The Bradford Family Protocol includes the following components:

- A comprehensive medical evaluation
- A personalized treatment plan
- Ongoing support from a team of healthcare professionals

The medical evaluation includes a thorough review of your medical history, a physical exam, and blood tests. The treatment plan is tailored to your individual needs and may include medication, lifestyle changes, and surgery.

The Bradford Family Protocol is a safe and effective way to manage HEDS. If you are struggling with the symptoms of HEDS, talk to your doctor about whether the Bradford Family Protocol is right for you.
